

All things have a natural frequency.

Driven or forced oscillations.

When forced oscillations match object's natural frequency, small changes in driven amplitude result in large changes in the object.